

Dealing Simulation Course

In Association with ACI Australia

17 - 21 June 2013

The fastest and most interactive way to understand the FX trading environment

This course is aimed at individuals who wish to increase their knowledge of physical dealing techniques, understand the dynamics and relationships of the FX market or looking to develop a career in the OTC financial markets.

The Course

- The ACI Dealing Simulation Course is the only course of its kind in the world. The intensive programme replicates the dealing environment, giving delegates real insight into how FX traders, sales teams and brokers all interact in the FX market.
- Delegates will learn the role of a Chief Dealer, Prop Trader and Broker in a simulated dealing room. They also gain insight into technical analysis, risk management, trading psychology and the OTC financial markets.
- Theoretical knowledge is combined with hands-on experience throughout this 5-day residential course, which also includes informative presentations from experienced industry speakers.
- Delegates utilise electronic broking and pricing technology, as well as interact with voice brokers to truly replicate the dealing experience. Counterparties include banks, hedge funds, corporates, asset management and Central Banks, all of whom react to a variety of news and economic headlines generated by a real-time scrolling news service.
- Delegates work in teams and experience a genuinely competitive and exciting trading environment.
- The course is run in accordance with the internationally recognised Model Code, which encourages best practice, integrity and professionalism in trading the OTC markets.

What do previous delegates say?

"I will definitely let other aspiring dealers know about this wonderful course and encourage them to attend."

"Hands on experience, but we are well supported by the organisers. The passion they have for the course is incredible and the level of teaching and content meant I learnt a huge amount."

"I really, really recommend that everyone working in the FX space should do this course at some point. It's not easy – we were doing a face-to-face dealing session in the bar at midnight and then were woken up at 4:30am to trade because of an event in Asia– but I was amazed at the speed in which I learnt...on the last day of trading found myself ripping my hair out at my broker (or was it vice versa?) because she wasn't responding quick enough!"

"I think the course is fantastic; it is a great way to teach newcomers to the markets in an intense environment. Very informative, covering every aspect of trading."

Learning Outcomes

The 5-day residential course is designed to train delegates in the physical side of trading. The realistic trading scenarios are balanced by informative lectures from industry experts on the principles and requirements for each of the trading elements – so that everything that is taught is practiced in a real-scenario environment. At the end of the programme course delegates will have gained an understanding of:

- Trading
- Regulations and compliance
- The role of brokers
- Methods and psychology of trading
- Risk management
- The role of the Central Bank
- Technical analysis
- OTC financial markets
- Futures Trading

There is an exam at the end of the course and every delegate will also receive a personalised performance report. The report highlights each delegate's strengths and overall commitment to the programme, providing invaluable insight into their style of trading as well as how they work as part of a team in a pressured and challenging environment.
